2. MORAY SINCLAIR

The CBC canteen is not, perhaps, the best spot for an interview, but when an opportunity presents itself you grab it, regardless of location. Enticing Moray Sinclair there with the promise of a cup of coffee was the work of a moment; six generations have had little or no effect on Scottish ancestry.

Once seated I fired my opening broadside. "Okay, Moray," I said. "You know what I want. Let's have it."

Exhaling a cloud of smoke, Moray grinned as he thought aloud: "Trouble is to know where to begin."

"Well," I prodded. "Let's start with radio. When and where?"

My first contact with radio," he replied, "was in 1925 I guess, in Montreal. I was handling publicity for a night club there and the owner suggested I fill the spot as M.C. for the show as well. Stage experience I'd had, but night club host — that was something else again. However, he persuaded me. The 'hosting' eventually included interviewing celebrities, American and Canadian, and once I got over the initial stage fright I thoroughly enjoyed it."

In 1930 Moray took part in a radio series called Just Supposin', broadcast from the old CKY (later Since this profile was written, it has been learned that the Manitoba school telecast on the Elizabethan drama, in which Moray Sinclair played a role, has been awarded one of the Ohio Awards for educational and cultural programs. The program was written by Stirling Dorrance and produced by Len Weinstein of CBC Winnipeg.

CBW) studios in Winnipeg. Shortly after this, business commitments caused a lull in Moray's professional career; it lasted for 15 years. In 1933, however, while working with a Winnipeg department store, Moray played the leading role in Man Born to Be Hanged for the company's Maskers' Club. This was the year of the first Dominion Drama Festival. The play was entered and it won the regional award. The players moved on to Ottawa — and won again. Then the group was asked to perform in Eaton Hall in Toronto. After this performance the director (Wes McQuillan) was approached by the CBC and the group's tour de force was complete when the play was broadcast to the country on a national hook-up.

"The procedure was quite simple in those days," Moray recalled. "—a table with a mike around which the cast sat and delivered its lines."

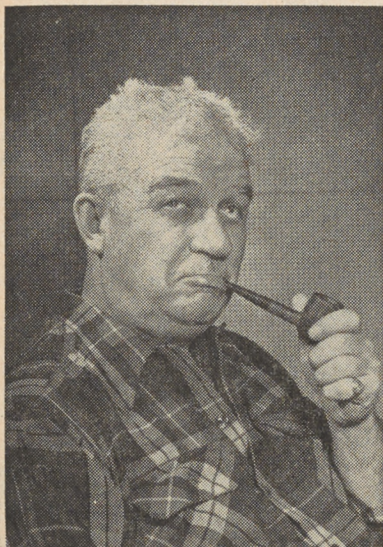

Sandwiched between his many professional duties (he was supervisor of the store's mail order catalogue for 15 years, supervisor of its public relations department in Toronto for two years, and supervisor of its western advertising department) he found time to continue in amateur dramatics. Until the beginning of the war he was both an actor and producer with the Winnipeg Little Theatre, then the department of munitions and supply claimed his services. On leave of absence he wrote and produced Voices of Victory, an on-the-spot radio program of interviews with factory workers, and handled the publicity for Victory Loans.

Recently he has appeared on the stage in Our Town (which he also produced), The Man Who Came to Dinner (in the leading role), Twelfth Night (as Sir Toby), and Do You Remember, a Rainbow Stage production which grew out of a CBC-TV production.

Since 1952 Moray has acted regularly in radio dramas, and school broadcasts from Winnipeg. He is heard most frequently as Dick Jackson in The Jacksons and Their Neighbours on the CBC Farm Broadcast. On television, he has taken part in several plays.

Moray is living proof of the dictum that a busy man gets things done. He is a past president of ACRTA (Association of Canadian Radio and Television Artists), regional vice-president of the Canadian Council of Actors and Artists, Director of the Shoestring Theatre, and owner of a successful public relations and advertising counselling business.

Born in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, in 1900, Moray moved to Norway House (which had been established for the Hudson's Bay Company by one of his ancestors) when he was about one year old. When he was 17 he entered the Royal Military College at Kingston, graduating three years later. He then joined the R.C.M.P., serving in Regina and Vancouver. He resigned to enter the advertising business in Montreal in 1924. What happened from that point on has just been told.

Wayne and Shuster Return To Radio—CBC and BBC

To Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, North America's top television comedy team, Toronto has always been home, and they don't want to leave it. That's why they're so delighted with an agreement they've reached with the CBC, which will assure their participation in Canadian television for the next five years. "We hope it's an affirmation of our faith in the future of TV in this country," they said in an interview. "Perhaps it will start a trend . . . other Canadians may see that the grass at home is pretty green."

Robert McCall, CBC supervisor of variety, shares their enthusiasm: "We are pleased to be able to arrange for the continuation of a major program in the variety field over the next five years. It is encouraging to know that we are now getting to the point in Canadian show-business where we can hold talent of this calibre on the basis of Canadian audience interest and commercial support."

Wayne and Shuster will appear in a series of "specials" starting this fall—their 22nd year in show-business. They won't follow any format, but will experiment in new directions, and hope to widen the scope of TV as a comedy medium. Their contract with Ed Sullivan runs for another year, so they'll be playing for laughs on U.S. television, too, from time to time. Summer plans include golf for Frank and sailing for Johnny and a possible trip to England. They've been invited to do two spectaculars for British television, but haven't said a final "yes."

Britons will, however, hear Wayne and Shuster in their "original" form during Canada Week (May 30-June 6) in Britain. A special half-hour show to be presented this Monday on the Trans-Canada radio network (10:30 p.m. on CBW, 9 p.m. on CBK, and 8 p.m. on CBX) is one of several CBC radio programs to be carried on the BBC.

Meet Brenda Cordwell . . .

"Coffee Break" Girl at CJLH-TV

Brenda Cordwell, senior writer and announcer at CJLH-TV in Lethbridge, proves that good things do come in small packages.

Short in height (5'1") and long in experience (nine years in broadcasting), Brenda hosts both the weekly Hoyt's Home Guide and the Coffee Break period of the daily Stage Seven. She is also seen extolling the merits of many products, from soft drinks to ladies' shoes, on local TV commercials.

Brenda started her career as librarian and women's commentator at radio station CFAC in Calgary, then moved to the promotion department at CKWX in Vancouver for one year. She has been with CJLH-TV since it opened in 1955.

She recalls as highlights of her career interviews with singer Igor Gorin, comedienne Anna Russell, and conductor Sir Ernest MacMillan. The "greatest thing that ever happened" to her was winning an award for the best character actress in the 1958 Alberta finals of the Dominion Drama Festival. Brenda has been active in amateur theatrical groups, including Calgary's well-known Workshop 14 under Betty Mitchell (who will be interviewed on Trans-Canada Matinee this Friday—see page 30) for 16 years.

Acting is not Brenda's only outside interest. A rabid sports enthusiast, she possesses nine bowling trophies (which she insists were not gained in major competitions); she is secretary of the Southminster Church choir, and her greatest desire—to travel—will be partly satisfied this summer when she spends two months in Europe.—Babs Pitt, promotion manager, CJLH-TV.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN

We have had many enquiries from Winnipeg viewers who would like to know when "The Great Gilbert and Sullivan" will be presented on CBWT. The April 18 showing was cancelled because the film did not arrive on time, and it was rescheduled in last week's CBC Times for presentation on May 14. However, because of the late starting time for the movie that night (election night in Manitoba) and because of the apparent interest in this film it has now been decided to present it on a week-end in the near future. ("Not a Ladies' Man," a 1942 Columbia release starring Paul Kelly and Fay Wray, will be seen May 14 on CBWT.)

WHAT'S IN STORE FOR GHANA? You can get all the stock answers: greater independence, a stronger-than-ever influence in African and world affairs, a fuller, richer life for its people . . .

But if you talk with Kofi Busia, 45-year-old anthropologist-turned-politician, you get this:

Ghana today is only one last fateful step or two this side of dictatorship.

Who'd be dictator? Kwame Nkrumah, of course.

Busia, leader of Ghana's opposition United Party, lists on Close-Up this week the hard things he says Prime Minister Nkrumah is doing to plough Ghanaian democracy under. The interviewer is Ken MacTaggart of the (Toronto) Telegram, who talked with Tom Mboya and others in Close-Up's April 1 report on Kenya.

In its report on Ghana this Wednesday, Close-Up studies the development of what Nkrumah has called "the African way of doing things." That of course means a good look at the Ghanaian people.

They're a happy, smiling people, the 5,000,000 Ghanaians. It shows even in the names they give their buses. Not Downtown or Acrosstown or Don Mills or Main Street or Belt Line . . . not in Ghana. (Please turn to page 15)

Fighting Words

Nathan Cohen is moderator as a panel of four discuss controversial quotes. From Toronto.

Who Makes a Good Panelist?

"Fighting Words" producers have made some unexpected discoveries

THE AUDIENCE never knows when a verbal explosion will occur. It's the unpredictability of Fighting Words that explains why a simple-format show has not only survived six-and-a-half years on television and radio, but has grown steadily in popularity as a thinking man's half-hour. Sometimes chairman Nathan Cohen is caught in lively cross-fire as soon as the show starts; at other times the discussion works up slowly to eruption point. Or maybe there'll be no bang at all, but an even-tempered, fascinating presentation of opinion and revelation of personality.

Many people have wondered whether Fighting Words is completely spontaneous. The answer is a decided yes. The four guests on each show aren't told beforehand what the topics of conversation will be. There is no rehearsal.

Cohen believes in keeping to the background as much as possible, letting the conversation run along freely. He drops quotations in mid-stream and substitutes others to maintain the flow of conversation, or lets the discussion of a single quotation continue for the whole half-hour, if it's particularly stimulating. New, fresh faces appear on the show each week. There are no regulars, but some favorites have been invited back for another session.

What type of person makes a good panelist? One capable of quick, spontaneous thinking and expression, who won't monopolize the conversation, but isn't afraid of being candid. If one tends to drown out the others, or misinterpret what they say, Cohen moves in quickly, and has, on occasion, bluntly ended the conversation, leaving the gabby person holding his bag of words in mid-air. Cohen says: "The annoying thing is knowing that a panelist has some decided and interesting views on a subject, and not being able to get him to say what he really thinks." When that happens, Cohen sometimes tries a bit of subtle teasing to get him to speak out.

For some strange reason, most women make poor Fighting Words panelists. Cohen and producer Cliff Solway are far from anti-feminists. They want to have women on the show, and in trying to find the ideal type they've invited all kinds to take part—young and old, beautiful and plain, smokers and non-smokers, lively and quiet. But, with the exception of Charlotte Whitton, Dr. Hilda Neatby, and one or two others, feminine panelists suddenly become inhibited when the show begins to roll. "It's no reflection on their ability," Cohen hastens to assure. "It's just something psychological. Many of them have been very successful TV performers on other shows."

To keep Fighting Words as topical and fresh as possible, guests aren't chosen until a few days before showtime. Solway and Cohen sometimes select quotations for the show first, and then look for people who might approach the subject vigorously. Or they'll select panelists first, and then use quotes that might elicit lively opinions from them. Nobody has ever refused an invitation to take part.

The research involved in Fighting Words is considerable, and Cohen and Solway do it all themselves. Each week hundreds of letters arrive with suggestions for quotations or guests, and discussions of issues raised on the show. Every letter is read and answered. This mail is of a very personal kind, and is one of the things Cohen and Solway like best about the show. Listeners appear to be from nearly all stratas of society, and are all loyal and articulate.

Split Personality in the Hit Parade

Producers must please two entirely different audiences

Hit Parade producer Peter Macfarlane with script assistant Noreen St. Pierre. Co-producer Stan Harris has been signed to produce the NBC-TV variety show which replaces Perry Como this summer stolen Mr. Mason's idea of doing a soft shoe act.

Mickey Mouse Club

From the Disney Studios — the Mouseketeers, film serial and cartoons.

CBWT—Scan

This week's guest will be Fred Davis who is host on the "Great Movies" series. He'll talk about his television activities. (CBWT - 6:45 p.m.)

The Millionaire

This week — "John Rackham." A young deck steward falls in love with a passenger only to learn that she is the daughter of a wealthy Indian philosopher. Even the receipt of a million-dollar cheque doesn't seem to solve the age-old conflict between east and west.

'Cross-Canada Hit Parade

Wally Koster, Joyce Hahn, Phyllis Marshall and Bert Niosi's orchestra present top tunes from the nation's hit parade.

Danny Thomas Show

This week — "Practical Joke." Danny Williams finds himself caught in a cross-fire of practical jokes and jokers.

Cannonball

This week — "Roadeo." Mike and Jerry both try to see to it that the other wins the annual trucking roadeo and almost lose the title to an obnoxious rival.

Desilu Playhouse

WALLY KOSTER stood at the soda fountain, idly playing with the dummy sodas provided by props. Joyce Hahn sat in the Hit Parade audience seats and worked on a big tapestry; it showed two brightly coloured ballet dancers. Phyllis Marshall talked to one of the cameramen.

"We're lucky to have Wally Koster as emcee and singer," said producer Peter Macfarlane. "He's versatile. He sings opera one week — if you like to count Porgy and Bess as opera — and next week he sings a song made famous with 17-year-olds by a 17-year-old and called There'll Never Be Another You.

In the studio below the control room Wally absent-mindedly sucked on a straw. Then startled, he hurriedly dropped the soda glass. A stagehand looked at him spluttering.

"You better spit that out Wally," said the stagehand. "It's paint."

"Spit it out!" said Wally. "I like it." — But he left the studio for ten minutes.

"Like I say," said Peter Macfarlane. "We're lucky to have Wally Koster. He can sing songs to please the whole family."

Hardest part of a musical show like Hit Parade, according to Macfarlane, are the transitions between numbers. This is particularly so on the alternate Hit Parades which use a circular set with cameras coming in from any angle.

A huge imitation package of the sponsor's product — taller even than Koster ("I've heard of Kingsize, but this is ridiculous") — slid down out of the flies.

"Dolly in on that," Peter told the cameraman. "Tighter . . ." The package completely filled the screen, with Wally in front of it. "You'll just have time to shift those props behind it."

Other problems are solved a little cynically, like the time Wally had to rid himself of a bunch of milkshake cannisters.

"Drop 'em on the floor in disgust," said Peter.

"The Crewcuts did that three weeks ago."

"They did? Then we're repeating it by popular request."

Cross Canada Hit Parade first began on CBC-TV four years ago. It had two young producers, Stan Harris and Peter Macfarlane. Harris has been with the show constantly since then; a tribute to his work came this summer when he accepted an offer to direct Perry Como's summer replacement for NBC. Peter Macfarlane last fall returned from Great Britain where he worked for Granada TV for 14 months, first producing the Alan Young Show and then Chelsea at Nine. such plays as The Iceman Cometh) and Janet Blair in musical comedy.

"This was wonderful experience in showing me just how people of that stature could handle a show without benefit of elaborate staging," Peter said. "The experience has been very helpful in working with Hit Parade in the round where the performance depends entirely on quality with little help from staging."

After the show, Peter talked a little about hit parades and rock 'n roll. "The original Hit Parades, pre-Rock 'n roll, contained good ballads competently sung by trained adults. And adults as well as the younger set listened to them. But then the early teen-agers and even younger groups became an economic factor. With them came rock 'n roll with its hypnotic rhythm and simple words. What's more, the teen-agers wanted to hear teen-agers singing the songs."

"Adults, naturally, found little to interest them in rock 'n roll or the teen-agers who sing it." Peter went on. "So we find a complete split in the record industry: the 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ rpm's coming packaged in elaborate albums, and the cheap 45 rpm's for the kids. Naturally, this posed a problem for hit parades in Canada, in Britain, and in the United States where they were originally born. How could a show designed to survey the record industry appeal to both age groups?"

"In the United States no solution could be found. It looks as if this year is the last for the program, after about 25 years on radio and TV. In Britain a Hit Parade type program is still going but the effort to combine both tastes on the one program is obviously causing difficulties.

"It seems to me that Stan Harris and the CBC have found the only way to handle the situation—that is, alternate the programs between the two types of music: albums one night, records the other."

This still leaves a problem on record nights: how to fit rock 'n roll into a TV show. "The only variation in a lot of rock 'n roll songs," Peter went on, "are the recording gimmicks like echo chambers and multiple recordings, and vocal tricks, rumbles and screeches, groans by the singer. This type of rock 'n roll we can't handle on TV. Either it's technically impossible, or it just won't go across as music. On the other hand we can handle novelty rock 'n roll numbers like Pink Shoelaces and melodic rock 'n roll; that is, songs which might well have been written in some other popular idiom.

"In future," Peter concluded, "we intend to use singers who have experience and stature in the popular field to take the place of the gimmicks. There'll be our own local people, of course: Joyce, Phil and Wally have long since proved themselves. And we also plan to have people like Dorothy Collins, Johnny Desmond, Julius La Rosa, and Sarah Vaughn. In this way we are sure we can cope with the split personality of the record business and keep Hit Parade a popular show."

Next week, she'll return to show us some of the fans she collected on her trip.

U.S. Variety Series To Star U.K. Comic

One of Britain's top TV comedians and recording artists replaces Milton Berle on Kraft Music Hall this Wednesday.

Dave King will be featured in a comedy-variety show which will spotlight a guest star each week. The regular cast will include a group of six girl dancers and a mixed chorus of eight.

King is the first foreign personality in American broadcasting to be signed as the star of his own TV show without any previous TV appearances. He was recently introduced to U.S. and Canadian viewers as guest on the Perry Como Show.

He started his career as a music hall variety entertainer in London, won national acclaim with his first BBC-TV appearance in 1954, and had his own TV series, The Dave King Show, from 1955 to 1957. During that time, the comedian made his debut as a singer and dancer, and soon was recording on both British and American labels.

His records were quick hits, and in a short time he led the English hit parade and was fifth in the All-World Top Twenty. He has appeared on the London stage, headed a variety bill at the London Palladium, and starred in The Dave King Show at the London Hippodrome.

King was born in Twickenham, near London, in 1929. His hobby is collecting books on the American Indian, and he and his wife—ex-dancer Jean Hart—have named their two daughters after Indian tribes. Cheyenne is two and Kiowa is one.

Scripts for King's show on the Kraft Music Hall will be by two English writers, S. C. Green and R. M. Mills, whom King is bringing from England.

King will be seen on the Wednesday night Kraft Music Hall spot until September, when Perry Como will take over his half-hour and the Bat Masterson period which follows it. (During the summer The Perry Como Show will be replaced by a variety program from New York, to be produced by Stan Harris of the CBC).

PROGRAM NOTES

Nursery School Time

Songs and stories for tots, with Maman Fonfon. From Montreal.

Douglas Fairbanks Presents

Drama series with your host Douglas Fairbanks. This week — "Trouble with Destiny."

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Today the annual hilarity and traditions of Puck Fair at Kilorglin are described by Cec Montgomery, Winnipeg actor who spoke his first words in Ireland and hasn't changed his accent since. After that bit of fun we delve into the stream of Manitoba history, with Hart Bowsfield to tell the story of the steamship Anson Northup. Mrs. A. R. Gauer starts a series of recipes of special interest to the June brides, their families and friends. (CBWT-2:00 p.m.).

Open House

GUEST OF THE WEEK — Dr. Bruno Bettelheim of the University of Chicago. Dr. Bettelheim specializes in the treatment of emotionally disturbed children, and directs the activities of the Sonia Shankman Orthogenic School, where remarkable work has been done with children suffering from mental illness. Best known of his cases is that of a boy whose bizarre delusions were based on a belief that he was actually a machine — that he could not function unless he plugged himself into an imaginary electric outlet. Over a period of years, the cause of his strange behaviour was discovered, and with the patience and care of Dr. Bettelheim and his associates at the school are gradually bringing him back to normalcy. In addition to his work with emotionally disturbed children, Dr. Bettelheim has also made a study of racial prejudice. Among the books he has written are "The Dynamics of Prejudice" and "Love is Not Enough." Dr. Bettelheim's theories arise not simply from study and research; his experience as a prisoner in European concentration camps gives him a special insight into the sufferings of people suffering discrimination.

Speaking French

More lessons in French, with Prof. Jean-Paul Vinay, assisted by Helen Baillargeon. From Montreal.

Maggie Muggins

Maggie and her friends have a gypsy caravan, but somehow it falls into the pond, where Grandmother Frog meets some of her fish friends and sings them a song—underwater!

Pieces of Eight

Pirate adventures for children.

Whistletown

It's a beautiful day in Whistletown, so the gang from the firehall go to a picnic in the park.

Woody Woodpecker

Andy Panda conducts the barnyard orchestra.

CBWT—Hobby Corner

This week—the last in a series of two programs on how to build a sailboat. Today's guest is Frank Alsip. Your host is Glynne Morris. (CBWT-5:00 p.m.)

Music Makers '59

With Jack Kane and his orchestra and vocalist Sylvia Murphy. Tonight's show departs from the regular format to show how important musical arrangements are, not only to musicians but also to dancers and actors. Jack Kane will reveal how much time, effort and paper goes into writing the arrangements for one "Music Makers" show. They will also show how music is written for dancers and the effect it has on a dramatic scene. A chase scene will be acted, first without any music and then complete with mood music.

Have Gun, Will Travel

This week—"The Monster of Moon Ridge." Hired to investigate a terrorizing "monster," Paladin discovers some giant bear tracks and finds that his client's daughter is also following the trail.

Wyatt Earp

This week—"Wyatt Meets Doc Holliday." The most quixotic figure in the west, Doc Holliday, saves Earp from death at the hands of a gang of outlaws. Hugh O'Brien stars as Wyatt Earp.

Loretta Young Show

This week—"Each Man's Island." Ricardo Montalban stars in this story of a man who learns that a dream island and a dream girl don't necessarily mean happiness.

Explorations

This week—"The Mirror," second program in the Renaissance series, showing how the artists of the period reflected the hopes and aspirations of the people. This program deals particularly with man's new pre-occupation with himself and the resulting increase in the number of portraits and self-portraits painted. Alan Jarvis, director of the National Gallery of Canada, will narrate.

Playbill

From Vancouver—"Westbrook's Man," a play by Herb Hosie about a middleaged Quaker farmer and his family. The action takes place on the Quaker's farm following the War of 1812, and the play concerns the family's reaction to the arrival of a youth who has been wounded by an American musket ball. The youth is returning to the farm where he was born of an American family, and the resulting conflicts of moral principles faced by the Quakers brings the play to an exciting climax.

"CLOSE-UP" ON GHANA

Buses there have names such as these:

Young No. 2 Girl, Fear God and Do Right, Canary Bird, Love Thy Neighbour, Envy No Man, He Who, And Such Is Life, Say What You Like To Me, I Believe In God, Zorro, Still Zorro, Still Zorro No. 2, Serve God And Shame The Devil, Keep Smiling.

And fishing boats . . . not Mary Lou or Sally or Miss Canada or Adventurer III . . . They call Ghanaian fishing boats Sea Never Dry . . . or Wave Lay Low . . . or Think of Yourself.

The people who use these buses and boats have been free since March 6, 1957—the day British rule ended and the Gold Coast became Ghana. The Nkrumah sort of independence is the only kind most of them know. For the time being at least, Kofi Busia and his opposition party attract no great following.

Every problem Ghana has is candy-coated by the sweet stuff of freedom.

"Troubles?" one young Ghanaian told me. "Of course we've got troubles. But they're our troubles."

(Close-Up had its own troubles in Ghana. We failed, despite the help of diplomats, government ministers and officials, and top-rank journalists, to obtain an interview with Prime Minister Nkrumah. We cooled our heels—"Any day now; maybe he'll see you tomorrow"—for a week before we finally got face to face with Nkrumah. The following Wednesday he said; four days later. Cameras were set up in the courtyard of his castle home, ready to shoot anytime he could spare 20 minutes, when we were informed that the prime minister was still too busy. He remained "too busy" until we left Ghana.)

The methods the government uses in meeting Ghanaian problems are what Opposition Leader Busia protests—methods which recall Nkrumah's warning in his autobiography.

"For a newly independent nation," he wrote, "even a system based on social justice and a democratic constitution may need backing up, during the period following independence, by emergency measures of a totalitarian kind."

Totalitarian, says Busia, is precisely the word for Nkrumah's tactics. Nkrumah would probably call it nation-building. And, on the surface, neither Ghana in general nor Nkrumah in particular is greatly concerned. The government goes right on expanding public education, developing its airline and steamship company, building harbours, opening a law school and a school of journalism (Africa's first), attracting industry . . .

Some observers say they are not concerned that government news-

Sunday School

• I am enthusiastic about nearly everything on Sunday School of the Air, except that it stops so early in the spring. I can't see why it should stop at all. Surely religious education is as important in summer as in winter, and more necessary over the radio when children are often away from church contacts. If the personnel and very able story-writer need a holiday surely someone else could be found in the interval. I love that choir, but we could get along with recordings until next fall. Please pass my suggestion to the church boards in charge or wherever it will do the most good. —Mrs. E. Luca, Foremost, Alta.

Mrs. Luca's suggestion will be passed on for consideration. In the meantime, we can point out that part of the program's purpose is to make Sunday School available to rural children who, during our prairie winters, often find it difficult or impossible to get to a "real" Sunday school.

Beach of Strangers

• CBC did Under Milk Wood extremely well, but my embarrassment at listening to the play (A Beach of Strangers) on CBC Wednesday Night is acute. Tell the writer that he must never try such a thing again; let him try his own legs, and not be clever with Dylan Thomas.—Mrs. P. L. Regina.

• Reviewing radio and television on the April 19th edition of Critically Speaking, Murdo McKinnon made some kind remarks about my script and production of A Beach of Strangers. For this I am duly grateful. However, I would like to take him up on one point. Every writer owes a large debt to his predecessors and I would be the last to deny how much I have learned from Dylan Thomas, W. H. Auden, and T. S. Eliot, or, going further back, from John Donne and William Langland. But there is an important difference between digested influence and slavish imitation. Mr. McKinnon said that I had "leaned heavily on T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land. If by this he means to charge me with being imitative, the charge is easily answered: I have never read The Waste Land. —John Reeves, Toronto.

No Village

• In the program notes for Sunday, May 3, under Postmark, U.K., it refers to Deal as "a quaint little fishing village opposite the coast of France." The last part of this statement is correct, but I'm wondering where you got the rest of it. It may have been that more than 100 years ago, but when I was last there in 1913 it was no village and I believe it has grown steadily. I have cut this note out and asked my sister to turn it in to the Deal Mercury for comment.

Your program notes are much appreciated and the TV notes I usually give to friends who will possibly end up by sending in a subscription. I've enjoyed the morning concerts from CBX very much — also Court of Opinion.—Mrs. V. Bromley, Sylvan Lake, Alta.

Notes on "Postmark U.K." are supplied to us by the BBC. Our apologies to Mrs. Bromley if we have made an error—and our thanks to her for promoting the CBC Times.

CBC Wins 21 Ohio Awards

It was learned at press-time this week that CBC programs had received 21 of the awards given annually by Ohio State University for cultural and educational programs on radio and television.

Among the programs receiving awards were Close-Up, Open House, Explorations, Junior Magazine, Summer Fallow, CBC Concert Hall and CBC Folio.

Two programs produced by CBC Winnipeg in co-operation with the Manitoba Department of Education were among the award winners. They were Le quart d'heure français (radio) and The Elizabethan Theatre (television). Another CBC Winnipeg production, Estevan—New Oil, New City, a radio documentary prepared by Ron Hunka for the Canadian Scene series, also received an award.

Full details on the Ohio Awards will be published in next week's CBC Times.

MUSIC ON RADIO

By DR. BOYD NEEL, Dean, Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto

On Saturday* there is a concert which is announced as commemorating the 150th anniversary of the birth of Mendelssohn. As Mendelssohn was born in 1805, I imagine that this must have been recorded in 1955. Anyhow, it is given by the Gewandhaus Orchestra of Leipzig, with which group this composer was intimately associated for much of his life. Leipzig has always had important musical connections—the home of the famous St. Thomas School, the Gewandhaus Orchestra, the Conservatory of Music, on the faculty of which at one time both Mendelssohn and Schumann were to be found simultaneously, and the

Planning the Post-News Talks

Dorothea Cox and Lou Miller are constantly on the alert for good material for CBC radio's most regular talks series

Dorothea Cox, program organizer for radio's Post-News Talks, shuffled through some papers on her desk. "Well," she said, "we heard recently of a man now in Montreal who has been teaching Shakespeare to African natives. We've asked our Montreal people to look him up about doing us a post-news talk. It seems the Africans found certain plays quite incomprehensible—their custom of arranged marriages for instance precluded any understanding of Romeo and Juliette. The Montreal people themselves suggested a talk on the new jet airliners spanning the Atlantic, soon maybe in less time than it takes to get to the airport.

"Then again we heard of a specialist in blood groupings coming to Toronto," Miss Cox went on. "His main interest lay in a new development in this field: tracing ethnic groups through their predominant blood groups. A local doctor mentioned him to one of the people in our department. Here's another: We heard of a Canadian in London going to Warsaw in a few weeks so we suggested to the CBC people in London they ask him to keep post-news talks in mind."

This wide range of subjects is typical of the post-news talks period. So too is their topicality. "I try to schedule ahead three post-news talks each week for CBC Times," said Miss Cox. "But I also leave one night blank each week so we can fit in any talks which are essentially topical."

The Talks and Public Affairs Department has various methods of hearing about suitable speakers.

A research assistant in Toronto keeps an eye on the look-out for people with a story. Scripts and tapes are sent in unsolicited. CBC Bureau and staff members in London, the U.S. and elsewhere send in suggestions, as do freelancers like Gladys Delmas in Buenos Aires, and William Stevenson in the Far East. Best of all, listeners themselves quite often send in suggestions as to what they would like to hear.

"We try particularly to get views on controversial subjects," Miss Cox said. "For instance, we had a stinging talk by a visiting professor about our universities which caused something of a stir."

Sunday night following the national news CBC radio carries another talks spot — Our Special Speaker. "We differ from post-news talks, I think, in that word 'special,'" said Lou Miller, organizer of the series. "Post-news talks can carry off-beat material, travel talks per se, commentaries and so forth, the main restriction being that they are interesting and well presented. We aren't so broad. In general, we fit our speakers into one or more of three categories. There's the nationally or internationally known name. Other people, for instance, have said what Bertrand Russell is saying on the hydrogen bomb. But Russell's name is now so prominent we have carried talks by him.

"Secondly, lesser names could qualify if they have some specially interesting thesis, though a thesis with public significance. For instance, we recently broadcast a talk by a young doctor who was

Wind Players Find Biggest Challenge In Small Music

The woodwind quintet probably demands more from performers than any other musical form. Each performer is virtually a soloist; yet the need for group sympathy re-mains. More, the wide range of tonal colour in a woodwind quin-tet adds problems not faced by, say, a string quartet.

But the greater the difficulties, the greater the rewards in over-coming them. And this challenge is the main reason the members of the CBC Woodwind Ensemble formed themselves into a group. They have been successful in their response to that challenge.

The members are all principals of the CBC Symphony Orchestra —Gordon Day, flute; Perry Bau-man, oboe; Abraham Galper, clari-net; Eugene Rittich, French horn; and Nicholas Kilburn, bassoon. For the past three years the group has been giving occasional concerts but this is the first season of regu-lar concerts as a group on CBC

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

MONDAY WASH-DAY. Having to do the family laundry turns many a Monday into "blue Monday" but not for the women of Hampstead. There, roving Canadian Barbara Green found "England's jolliest institution," the public baths, forerunner of the laundromat. No Monday blues there, but laughter and sociability and gossip galore. Miss Green joined the patrons of the washhouse and recorded a morning's conversation for Matinee listeners.

CONSUMERS' REPRESENTATIVE. Soon after Averell Harriman became governor of the state of New York, he created a new executive post—that of Consumer Counsel to the Governor. To the post he appointed Australian-born Persia Campbell, a doctor of economics and a woman with a background of experience as a consumer consultant to various governmental agencies. Since her appointment, and into the tenure of a new governor, Dr. Campbell has initiated legislation on instalment buying, labelling, and many other subjects of vital interest to the consumer. In this Matinee interview with Toronto freelance broadcaster Wendy Butler, Dr. Campbell talks about her position and her legislation.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE. When the bride in Uganda leaves her childhood home, her mother anoints her with butter. And before the wedding can take place, the groom must pay a "bride price" to her family for the privilege of making her his wife. The "bride price" used to be cattle and goats but is now cash, and often only a nominal amount, but the custom persists. Rhona Kibuka-Musoke reports on wedding customs in her native country. The report was obtained by the CBC from the Uganda Broadcasting System.

Today's news commentary is by Tim Creery of Ottawa. The recorded music will be introduced by Pat Patterson, and the reading (by Michael Kane) is from Farley Mowat's "The Dog Who Wouldn't Be."

great publishing house of Breitkopf and Hartel. The most celebrated of all the directors of St. Thomas School was, of course, John Sebastian Bach who held the position from 1723 to 1750. This is probably the most famous music school in the world, at which several hundred boys between the ages of 10 and 19 receive a free education. About 60 of these boys are special musical scholars who are given the most comprehensive musical training to be found anywhere today.

The Gewandhaus Orchestra, which we are to hear on Saturday, takes its name from the building in which it plays — the ancient Cloth Hall of Leipzig. The present building, which somehow survived the Second World War, is considered to be one of the few acoustically perfect auditoriums in the world. At the Mendelssohn commemoration concert we can hear the Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra in E major. Mendelssohn wrote two double piano concertos, of which the one in A flat is heard occasionally at concerts. I have never heard this concerto in E, however, and cannot recollect ever having read of a performance before, so that this should be something of the utmost interest to all lovers of this composer.

On Sunday evening (CBC Symphony) I see that Les Biches by Poulenc forms part of a ballet program. This was one of Diaghilev's most famous ballets and is full of fun and games. Les Biches is an idiomatic French term and means in fact The House Party and the ballet is just an amusing get-together of the various guests at a weekend party in the country. Towards the end of the work, Poulenc for some reason quotes the finale of Mozart's Prague Symphony; why, I have never discovered, unless in the very first production there was some special piece of stage business connected with this. I can remember seeing the ballet very soon after it was first produced in the 1920's, but cannot recollect any business of this kind.

In the same concert we are to hear three dances from John Weinzweig's ballet Red Ear of Corn, which dates from 1949 when it was produced at Toronto's Royal Alex during the Canadian Ballet Festival and was commissioned by the Volkoff Ballet of Toronto for performance at the Festival. This ballet is based on an old Indian legend, the Red Ear of Corn.

Harvey Dawes

Each of the 12 discs, recorded by Frances Bay at the Brussels World Fair last year, takes the form of a salute to one of the great bands of yesterday and today and includes some of the numbers that these bands made famous.

The Bay Big Band series started April 28 with a salute to the Benny Goodman band. On May 5, some favorite Glen Miller tunes were presented, including American Patrol, Tuxedo Junction, In the Mood, At Last, St. Louis Blues, and others.

Francis Bay organized the Bay Big Band in 1954, and it became the first regular radio dance band since the end of World War II. It recently won the coveted "Golden Gondol" trophy in a battle of the bands at Venice, Italy. Francis Bay plays trombone, clarinet, also saxophone and flute with equal skill. His regular programs on the Brussels N.I.R. Radio can be heard weekly on stations in England, France, Belgium and surrounding countries.

willing to assert there was a definite link between smoking and lung cancer.

"The third category," Mr. Miller said, "is the speaker who was involved in some special event. For instance, a young British student who witnessed the Hungarian uprising."

The list of special speakers recently is impressive. They include Lord Lindsay, a political theorist who has swung away from extreme left-wing views, particularly on Red China; Lord Russell on his open letter to Krushchev; Dr. Donald Soper, the prominent Methodist and pacifist speaking of pacifism; the Right Honourable John Diefenbaker on the tenth anniversary of NATO; Cyrus Eaton, the industrialist with unorthodox ideas on East-West relationships; Sir Ernest Macmillan talking not on music but on his experiences in World War I as a prisoner in Germany; V. N. Stoletov, First Deputy Minister of Education in the Soviet Union; Sir Robert Watson-Watt on Canada's defence policies; Fritz Erler, Deputy Leader of the West German Social Democratic party; and Sir Vivian Fuchs on the first crossing of the Antarctic continent. These are but a few of Our Special Speakers.

WHAT GOES ON IN OUR SCHOOLS? Many bright Canadian children fail to enter high school, or leave high school before they have completed their courses. Often, the best-equipped student does not go on to University. The reasons for this "fallout" in the educational system are discussed in the last broadcast in Matinee's education series. Would more money for education alone solve the problem? Marjorie McEnaney has asked the experts. Would there be any virtue in a federal ministry of education? University officials discussed these questions with Mrs. McEnaney; people who left high school

Following his brilliant formal debut at 17, a succession of triumphs in France led to his London debut. Later, he came to New York where his initial success was followed by recognition throughout the United States and Canada. The distinguished artist has devoted himself to the harp as both performer and teacher. He has made several concert tours in Europe and America, and his teaching in the United States and Canada has developed a new generation of harpists.

ward, examined the bones and announced with great excitement to the Geological Society of London that they had found the oldest human remains ever discovered.

The newspapers had a hey-day. Darwin's Missing Link! they shouted. England's Oldest Citizen Solves Scientific Puzzle! A century ago this year, Darwin had shown the horrified Victorians that both man and ape had descended from a common ancestor in the remote past, and here was the missing link in the chain of man's descent! Scientists descended on the Sussex gravel pit like locusts, and more bones were uncovered. A motley assortment they were, indicating that man in his early form was far from a pretty sight. There was a jawbone resembling that of an orangutang, thigh bones of something that looked like an extinct elephant, and bits of skull and

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

TOURIST GO HOME. Some Canadians are past masters at the art of losing money and alienating tourists. There's the service-station operator, for example, who reluctantly sells you his gasoline and whose washrooms are incredibly dirty. There's the restaurant owner who serves such "Canadian" menus as New England boiled dinner, Kentucky fried chicken and Virginia ham. And there's the roadside coffee shop that serves indifferent coffee from cracked cups to the blaring noise of a juke-box. No wonder tourists go home and vow never to come back. The National Film Board of Canada has just produced a film privately for the Canadian Tourist Association designed to encourage Canadians' hospitality toward tourists. Marion McCormick, the CBC's morning commentator in Montreal, reports on the film.

THE HOUSE THAT BARRIE BUILT. For the past month, Barrie Clark has been describing the joys, wonders and pitfalls of building a house. Today, the house is finished, but there remains decorating and landscaping without which it cannot really be said to be complete. Mr. Clark, with Ernest Brown, a color dynamics consultant, and William Turner, a nurseryman and landscaper, talks about painting the interior, types of paint, color schemes, landscaping and planning. Mr. Clark is a Vancouver radio announcer and he and his family have recently built a house of their own.

MEXICAN MARKETS. Gladys Delmas is a journalist, a commentator on international affairs, and a traveller. One of the things she likes best to do when she's travelling is to visit the markets and she did just that on a recent trip to Mexico City. For Matinee listeners today, she reports on her Mexican marketing expedition: the pyramids of fruits and vegetables, the infinite variety of chilis, the herbs for everything from a savory sauce to a sprained ankle. Mrs. Delmas currently makes her home in Buenos Aires.

Today's news commentary is by Isabel Wilson of Toronto, and the recorded music will be introduced by Pat Patterson. Michael Kane will read another excerpt from Farley Mowat's "The Dog Who Wouldn't Be."

PILTDOWN FRAUD

teeth that were unquestionably human, and very ancient. Either the jaw belonged to the skull or it didn't. No fossil apes had ever been discovered in Britain, so the jaw and skull could be part of the same ape-like man. Some sceptics refused to be taken in. Monstrous skullduggery, they declared, and looked at Charles Dawson with grave suspicion. But more senior scientists hailed the "Dawn-man" as a great discovery, and set the age of the bones at between half-a-million and a million years old. If learned men accepted them as authentic, why should the rest of the world assume there had been any monkey tricks? The Piltdown Man was in, and Dawson rested on his laurels until he died in 1916. It was reported that in his last illness he talked incoherently about a skull, though through proprietary interest or guilty conscience, no one knows.

For many years the story of Piltdown Man turned up in university classrooms around the world as an important discovery in the theory of evolution. But in the early 1940's a new evolutionary theory was brought forward which did not require the missing link, and the Dawn-man didn't seem so important. In 1949 an analysis of the fluorine content of the Piltdown Man fossils showed that they could not be earlier than the Upper Pleistocene, or great ice age. The Piltdown Man was on very shaky legs. Then in 1953 the original specimens were shown to a group of leading palaeontologists at a scientific meeting at the Natural History Museum in London. The scientists went to work on the bones with advanced modern techniques, and the Dawn-man was shown to be a complete fraud, a bundle of unrelated bones doctored to look old. Some cranial bits were definitely human and very ancient, but the jaw was believed to belong to a chimpanzee-like ape, the teeth had been artificially abraded, and various chemical tests proved that someone with a sense of humour and a clever knack for bluff had had himself a bit of fun at the expense of the rest of the world and the advance of science.

Maybe the prankster had tried one on for what he intended as just a brief fling at fooling the egg-heads, and then found his joke had run away with itself.

Most signs point to Charles Dawson as the culprit, or at least an accomplice. But because he isn't around to defend himself, writer James Bannerman feels the proof can't be considered conclusive.

Mr. Bannerman has been digging through the fascinating story of Piltdown Man, a whodunit of first rank, and has put together an exciting and amusing documentary for this week's CBC Wednesday Night. His research has extended to the records of various learned societies, newspaper stories, and a most entertaining book, The Piltdown Forgery, by one of the scientists who exposed the fraud, Dr. J. S. Weiner of Oxford University.

GUEST OF THE MONTH. Calgary's Workshop 14 has become well-known wherever in Canada theatre groups congregate. It has won many honours at Dominion Drama Festivals and many of the actors, actresses, and directors in television and radio today began their dramatic careers with Workshop 14. It was founded in the 1930's by Betty Mitchell, vivacious drama teacher in Calgary's schools for more than 30 years. Today, Betty Mitchell, who was given an honorary doctorate last fall by the University of Alberta in recognition of her work with amateur theatre throughout the province, is interviewed as Matinee's radio. The members have worked together in a number of other orchestras.

WOODWIND ENSEMBLE

In the past composers have not written a great deal of music for woodwind quintets. In recent years, however, the standard of instrument construction has risen markedly, and so has the standard of performance on them. This has attracted more interest by composers in this field. Perhaps another attraction for modern composers is the challenge provided by the wide tonal variety of this type of group.

There's one puzzling question about a woodwind quintet—one of its instruments, the French horn, is brass. "The French horn acts as a mediator between the low bassoon and the next instrument above, the clarinet," says French horn player with the group, Eugene Rittich. The instrument also very often provides a foundation for the other instruments.

The inclusion of the French horn in the woodwind quintet goes back at least as far as Mozart. Mozart was particularly interested in the French horn through his friendship with a remarkably fine horn player, Leugeb. In addition to his inclusion of horn parts in woodwind quintets, Mozart also wrote a number of horn concerti, thereby helping to popularize the instrument. The CBC Woodwind Ensemble's next concert, this Sunday morning, will feature Mozart's Quintet in E major.

The Ensemble will give two more concerts this summer in which the principal works will be: Quintet, op. 52 by Spohr (June 21); Youth Suite, op. 32 by Janacek (June 26, on Concert Hall).

Spohr, the German composer (born in Brunswick, 1784, and died in 1859), wrote a great deal of music including eleven operas and ten symphonies. Several performances of works by this now seldom-heard composer have already been heard this year—the centenary of his death.
